Proceeds of Crime Act

Through the Proceeds of Crime Act (POCA) criminals can have their assets confiscated if there is a genuine suspicion that they were obtained illegally – and the individual cannot prove differently. This can include the assets of family members. Over the last few years criminals have been sentenced to over 140 years in prison for not paying up!

Over the last 3 years West Yorkshire Police have confiscated over £31 MILLION from criminals

West Yorkshire Police and Crime Commissioner Mark Burns-Williamson and West Yorkshire Police receive a percentage of the confiscated money back from the Home Office and use this money to make our communities feel safer and be safer.

Mark and the Chief Constable split the money 50/50. The Chief Constable spends their half on operational policing, and Mark gives his half directly back to communities via his Safer Communities Fund.

Confiscation and Compensation Case Examples:

Human Trafficking

Man lured fellow countrymen to West Yorkshire to work in near slavery conditions, working up to 60 hours a week for as little as £20. £93,539.44 confiscated and an amount to be paid in compensation to the victims.

Embezzlement

College Administrator embezzled funds intended to pay for child care for students in order to live the high life and buy friendships. £62,463.00 confiscated and entire amount to be paid in compensation to the College.

Police and Crime Commissioner's Safer Communities Fund

Since February 2014, your PCC Mark Burns-Williamson has given just under £1.9 million directly back to communities through his Safer Communities fund.

All organisations funded meet the priorities in the Police and Crime Plan and work to ensure communities in West Yorkshire are safe and feel safe.

POCA provides invaluable funding to support communities, operational projects/initiatives and Crime Prevention.

HOW DO THEY AFFORD IT?

Do you know somebody living beyond their means and benefiting from crime?

Why should they get away with it?
Tell us, we will take action...
